Speak of the North, a Lonely Moor: Poems of Charlotte, Emily, Anne and Branwell Brontë By Rebecca Hillary

Speak of the North, a Lonely Moor is a collection of the poems of not only the Brontë sisters, but also of their brother, Branwell, with whom they wrote as children. The title itself comes from a poem by Charlotte, a beautiful and haunting ode to the land they called home, the glorious county of Yorkshire.

Featuring poems on a variety of subjects including the enchantment of nature, from possibly the most famous literary family in history, the Brontës.
